FUND MANAGER'S REPORT

We are pleased to share the quarterly report for Apis Growth Fund II L.P. (together with its parallel partnership, the "Fund") for the quarter ended 31 December 2024 (Q4 2024).

As we head into 2025, global growth is likely to remain stable, albeit lacklustre, while global inflation is expected to decline to 4.2% in 2025 and to 3.5% in 2026, converging back to central banks' targets. According to the latest World Economic Outlook projections published by the IMF in January 2025, global growth is expected to remain stable at 3.3% in both 2025 and 2026, below the historical (2000–19) average of 3.7%. Emerging and Developing Asia remains the region with the strongest 2025 outlook thanks to surging demand for semiconductors and electronics driven by significant investment in artificial intelligence, with a GDP growth forecast of 5.1% (which compares to 2.7% for the US and 1.0% for the Euro Area); India is expected to have the fastest growing economy, at 6.5%. The forecast for growth in sub-Saharan Africa has been revised upward from 3.8% in 2024 to 4.2% in 2025.[1]

The Fund's portfolio companies have been performing well compared to their peers thanks to prolonged secular trends – namely digital adoption and its positive effects such as financial inclusion – despite the challenging geopolitical and macroeconomic environment.

Turning to the Fund's portfolio companies:

TymeBank, a leading digital bank in South Africa, continued to show strong growth, reaching over 14.4 million total customers as of November and earning the title of South Africa's fastest-growing bank of 2024. In November, the Company posted 21% LTM net operating income (NOI) growth and achieved an LTM NOI of US$ 99.7M. In December 2024, Tymebank achieved unicorn status after completing a Series D capital raise at a US$ 1.2B pre-money valuation, raising US$ 250M in a round led by Nu Bank (one of the world's largest financial services platforms with over 110 million customers). The capital raised will support the ongoing growth of the business. The Fund, together with co-investors, now holds 12.6% of TymeBank.

RenewBuy, India's leading digitally assisted B2B2C insurance marketplace, continues to demonstrate robust growth: net contribution increased 6% YoY to US$ 9.9M in October 2024 LTM, driven by an increase in its partner network while continuing a transition towards the higher margin life business. The Company generated US$ 49.0M in revenue in October 2024 LTM which represented YoY growth of 23%.

Following the end of the Investment Period on 16 October 2023, the Fund is permitted to make follow-on investments until 28 March 2027, should the Manager deem it appropriate, and maintains adequate dry powder to do so.

Portfolio

As of the end of the quarter, the portfolio's gross total return stood at US$ 1.3B resulting in a gross 2.7x MoIC and a gross IRR of 52%. As at the date of this report, the Fund had received US$ 343.5M in proceeds from underlying investments, resulting in a DPI of 0.9x.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank our investors for their continued support.

Company overview

TymeBank ("Tyme") was launched to the public in Mar-19, with a national distribution, servicing and cash-in/cash-out footprint and has acquired over 14.4 million banking customers as of Nov-24. The company had 10 million users in SA, as well as 4.4M in the Philippines. At that point, Tyme was also signing up >100k users per month, with c. 34% of customers actively using their bank accounts. Tyme has established a large physical distribution network in SA through partnerships with the likes of Pick'n'Pay supermarkets and The Foschini Group. The bank has replicated a similar network in the Philippines through its partnership with the Gokongwei group.

Investment thesis

- Favourable market dynamics: South Africa's banking sector is concentrated, with the 5 largest banks accounting for over ~90% of sector assets worth ~US$ 419B (~120% of GDP). The sector also has high ROEs of 15 – 17% over the last 5 years.
- Structural cost advantage: Incumbents have high cost structures due to high street branch network, legacy technology and people costs. The South African market is also challenging for the enactment of employee and branch cuts due to strong unions. TymeBank provides transactional accounts at a much lower cost (30-50% less) than South Africa's next most affordable bank.
- Multiple Growth Levers: In addition to the strong traction amongst existing customers, we expect increasing user activity, improvements in profitability per customer, and benefits of operational leverage to emerge in coming years as the bank's offerings expand. Furthermore, the JV with JG Summit facilitates the entry into an attractive market (the Philippines) with a partner that has a leading national distribution presence.

Quarterly update

- Operating: The bank continues to show strong growth, reaching ~14.4M customers as of Nov-24 across Philippines (4.4m) and South Africa (10m). Tyme posted 21% LTM NOI growth and earned an LTM NOI of US$ 99.7M in Nov-24.
- Strategic: Tyme Group is launching its Merchant Cash Advance offering with its first customers in Indonesia and is also in the process of advancing preparations for its launch in Vietnam.
- Financing: The bank has completed a Series D raise at a US$ 1,231M pre-money valuation, raising US$ 250M in a round led by Nu Bank and M&G Catalyst.

Company overview

Founded in 2007, Doku is one of Indonesia's leading independent digital payment platforms, enabling merchants to accept a wide range of payment types for online transactions. It provides merchants with a comprehensive suite of payment solutions and is the only gateway player in Indonesia with a complete set of payment licenses, allowing the Company to offer complementary solutions in fund transfers, e-wallet and e-money to its customers. The Company has a payment gateway license (2018), money remittance license (2015), e-wallet license (2019) and e-money license (2012). Given the requirements for domestic processing and a regulatory environment that favours local players, this broad license suite is an important differentiator for the company. Additionally, as of March 2022, DOKU became the controlling shareholder in SenangPay, a leading player in the Malaysian Payments landscape.

Investment thesis

- Fast-growing market: Indonesia has the largest internet economy in Southeast Asia, estimated to be worth US$ 82B in 2023. Going forward, the Indonesian internet economy is projected to continue to have one of the highest growth rates in the region, growing at ~15% CAGR. As such, DOKU's core market is fertile and is expected to remain buoyant in years to come.
- Strong market position: Midtrans, Doku and Xendit are the top three payment gateways in Indonesia. Midtrans was acquired by Gojek in 2017. Since then, Doku has captured market share from merchants who prefer to integrate with an independent payment gateway, and today Doku continues to successfully defend its ~26% market share. As one of the first and largest gateways in Indonesia, Doku has benefitted from a strong reputation and track record amongst customers.
- Organic & inorganic growth levers: Doku is one of the few gateways in Indonesia with a complete set of payment-related licenses, enabling Doku to have diverse growth drivers (gateway, fund transfer and collaborative commerce). In addition, the launch of the DOKU 2.0 platform, and potential inorganic opportunities – such as the SenangPay acquisition - are expected to create additional growth levers.

Quarterly Update

- Operating: DOKU generated US$ 17.0M in Net Revenues (consolidated) for Nov-24 LTM, compared to US$ 17.9M a year ago, with the slight decline largely attributable to a change in regulation affecting social selling.
- Strategic: The business continues to recruit for a Head of Sales for Indonesia to continue to accelerate growth in this area. Apis are working with the business to accelerate the sales capabilities, in both Indonesia and Malaysia, as well as supporting the business in the strengthening of IT aspects.
- Transactional: The Company is considering inbound interest by several large strategic players for a potential investment.

Company overview

- Committed to bringing seamless financial services to the tens of millions of underserved customers in Egypt and the surrounding region, MNT-Halan is Egypt's largest and fastest growing lender to the unbanked, connecting consumers, vendors and micro-enterprises through its consumer facing app, merchant app, core banking system and payment solutions

Investment thesis

- Favourable macro and regulatory tailwinds: A dynamic and growing economy coupled with a young tech-savvy population of c.100 million people underscores Egypt's position as a uniquely attractive investment destination that is supported by recent government led economic reforms and progressive regulators focusing on increasing financial inclusion and digitization.
- Large, growing and attractive market opportunity: Despite enjoying mobile penetration rates exceeding 90%, Egypt remains relatively underdeveloped by emerging market standards from a credit, microfinance and digital services perspective, reflected by the fact that only c.25% of the population has a financial institution account. Quarterly update

- Operating: MNT-Halan's loan book has grown by 83% between Oct-23 and Oct-24 from US$ 428M to US$ 786M driven by Tam Finans' consolidation despite a 37% EGP devaluation. Worth highlighting that MNT-Halan's securitised loan book stood at US$ 200M as of Oct-24. On the other hand, the Company's PAT has decreased to US$ 46M as of LTM Oct-24, following the adoption of IFRS in preparation for a potential IPO.
- Strategic: MNT closed a US$ 52M primary round in Apr-24, primarily to fund the international expansion to Turkey through the acquisition of TAM Finans, an SME-focused factoring and micro credit platform. Additionally, the Company has also finalised a US$ 115M injection in the form of a convertible loan note led by the International Finance Corporation, an LP in the Fund. MNT is now ranked among the top 10 Egyptian banks by consumer loan book and has progressed its digital banking license application in partnership with the National Bank of Egypt, Egypt's largest publicly owned bank.
